Many thanks for the quick and helpful responses.

On timing of how we would squeeze this in to the agenda, we thought of three possible options (we are checking in parallel on the SG's calendar):

- we start the meeting one day one at 10h30 instead of 11h30 and thus put the Ukraine session in from 11h30-12h30 prior to the lunch (note we do not yet have confirmation on the SG's calendar, he would not attend the Ukraine item but it would change his timing of attendance at the opening of the Ministerial)
- we use the lunch slot on day one (ie cancel the private sector lunch)
- we use the lunch slot on day two (ie cancel the lunch on public awareness)

By way of example, the upcoming ELS ministerial (early April) will now have a dedicated session on the human migration crisis and the MCM agenda is also being adjusted. That said, an alternative would be to weave it in to the opening remarks and subsequent interventions of two sessions: 1) the opening session (here we could include reference in Mathias remarks to the environmental consequences of the conflict and the oecd's EPOC related work with Ukraine) and 2) the first climate plenary (where we could weave in discussion of the impact of the conflict on energy prices, energy policies and our long term climate goals).

Grateful for your thoughts,

Ingrid

Subject: Draft declaration revised UPDATE and NEXT STEPS

Dear John, André, Hodayah,

Ministerial Declaration – next steps

The third round of consultation on the draft ministerial declaration closed on 11 March. We received comments from 25 delegations and we are now working through all comments received.

As you know, we have scheduled a live virtual consultation on Friday to discuss the outstanding issues. John has kindly agreed to chair the meeting. The objective will be to go over the parts of the text where views have not yet converged, in the hope of agreeing to as much of the text at the meeting as possible. We will contact John separately to prepare for the meeting.

Given the tight timeline, we suggest that on this occasion, we share the revised draft declaration with the whole of EPOC instead of running the usual review with the extended bureau first. The idea here is to maximise the time that delegates will have to consult across their government on the revised text. This would also allow time for bilateral discussions among some members on the new text prior to the Friday meeting. Could you confirm that this approach is acceptable for you?

Following the Friday meeting, we anticipate that an additional short round of written consultations (48 hours), may be needed (around 21 or 22 March to 23 or 24 March). We can determine this together toward the end of the meeting on Friday.

Responding to the Russia-Ukraine war

You will have seen Lithuania's proposal to insert language in the Ministerial Declaration condemning Russia's attack against Ukraine. They have since forwarded that proposal to all deputy permanent representatives of the OECD delegations (and cancelled their Minister's attendance at the meeting). JP and SWE indicated support for the language via the written consultations while CAN noted support for some sort of language on the situation. No other delegations responded specifically on the point of Lithuania's proposal but a fair number have contacted the Secretariat bilaterally asking how we intend to respond to the situation. We have discussed this carefully internally, with the Secretary-General, global outreach, Council Secretariat and Legal teams. We have also spoken to Italy, as Chair of the MCM, and to the Director of Labour and Social Affairs, who will hold the next OECD Ministerial (and only other OECD Ministerial before the June MCM) in order to seek consistency of approaches across the Organisation's bodies.
